

Navatan World Fruits Cold room facility

Navatan World Fruits, a leading fruit importer and distributor in the greater Bangkok region, had outgrown its tenancy within Talad Thai markets. To support the company's continued growth, a new greenfield facility was required—one that could handle expanding volumes while maintaining optimal fruit quality.

- 📍 Pathum Thani Province, Thailand
- 📄 Advisory services, concept design, reporting and ongoing technical support and project management

Project scope

Wiley partnered closely with Navatan stakeholders to understand their unique operational needs, from temperature-sensitive storage to streamlined distribution. Our integrated team of food industry specialists developed tailored concept designs and detailed documentation to support local contractor procurement. Through early planning and technical collaboration, Wiley advised on optimal racking layouts, refrigeration systems, and temperature zoning to suit Navatan's diverse fruit products. This collaborative effort extended into project management support throughout construction, ensuring local delivery aligned with the original intent and standards.

Business value to client

Wiley's integrated design, engineering, and construction expertise gave Navatan the clarity and confidence to move forward with their investment, making informed decisions at every stage—from site planning to system specification. The result was a fit-for-purpose facility that supported current demand while setting the business up for future growth. With the new facility located on the perimeter of Talad Thai markets, Navatan was well-positioned to expand their customer reach and respond more efficiently to market needs.

Design and documentation

Distribution facility

Cold storage

Advisory Services

